LISTOS CALIFORNIA EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS CAMPAIGN

Far too often, the people and communities hardest hit by natural disasters are those least equipped to survive them. The Listos California Emergency Preparedness Campaign helps highly vulnerable populations get ready for wildfires, earthquakes and floods, before disasters strike. (Listos means “ready” in Spanish.)

Emergency alerts are the cornerstone of readiness and all Californians should receive them. But in too many counties, few people do. To help, we created customized Disaster Directories for all 58 counties in both English and Spanish. Each directory provides:

- A brief profile of the county’s disaster risks
- Relevant vulnerabilities of its residents
- State and local alert resources for
  - General emergencies
  - Earthquakes
  - Wildfires
  - Public Safety Power Shutoffs
- Resources for people who are medically dependent on electricity
- State and county resources on COVID-19

Listos California hopes these Disaster Directories help bridge the gap between people in harm’s way and alerts that save lives. Please note that this directory is accurate as of the date on its cover. Be sure to check the status of any resource for the latest updates.

INYO COUNTY AT A GLANCE

Inyo County: Located in East Central California, bordering the State of Nevada

Major cities: One incorporated city (Bishop), 5 tribal nations (Big Pine Paiute Tribe of the Owens Valley, Bishop Tribe, Timbi-Sha Shoshone Tribe, Fort Independence Community of Paiute, Lone Pine) and many unincorporated communities

Inyo County is home to both the highest peak in the contiguous U.S. (Mt. Whitney) and the lowest place in North America (Badwater Basin in Death Valley National Park). Considered one of the most remote places in California, residents may experience isolation during disasters, long travel times, difficult road conditions and spotty communication coverage, creating a high evacuation vulnerability. Due to its varied topography, the county is at increased risk of floods, droughts and wildfires. Severe weather can trigger avalanches and other landslides in parts of the county. With 12 active faults, the county is at increased risk of ground rupture, liquefaction and major ground shaking events.¹
COUNTY OVERVIEW

INYO COUNTY BY THE NUMBERS

- 8
  - Number of major flood disaster declarations between 2003 and 2017, a rate of more than one every two years

- 134°F
  - The hottest temperature ever recorded on the Earth’s surface at Greenland Ranch in Death Valley

- 30%
  - Percentage of county critical facilities at risk of damage from a dam failure

- 17,084
  - Acres of unincorporated Inyo County located in a very high fire hazard severity zone

- 21.8%
  - Percent of Inyo County residents over age 65, higher than the California average

- 13.7%
  - Percent of residents living with a disability, higher than the California average
WHAT ARE EMERGENCY ALERTS?

When emergencies and disasters strike, public safety agencies use different types of alerts to send emergency information to your cell phone, landline, radio or television.

What are the main types of Emergency Alerts?

- Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) are a national service that sends a vibration, loud tone and short message through your phone if an emergency is nearby. You must have a cell phone that is WEA enabled to receive alerts. You don’t need to sign up and there is no charge to you. You can check the settings in your phone to make sure the alerts are activated.

- The Emergency Alert System can be used by state and local officials to deliver important emergency messages to your TV or Radio.

- Mass Notification Systems like reverse 9-1-1 send an alert to your landline phone if you are in an affected area. Check with your city or county to see if you need to opt into this service.

- Outdoor Warning Sirens warn you to get inside immediately for more information. These can only be heard outside.

- Weather Radios will broadcast loud alert sounds during an emergency. If the power is out and your TV is not working, these radios can still broadcast continuous weather and emergency information specific to your area, 24/7.
